Moreover, she was very involved in community service. From being an assistant Sunday school teacher to later being president, board member, and volunteer of many organizations, she felt a duty to help other people and give back. She was recognized by several organizations for her leadership, including Jewish Federation of Greater Dallas, having received its Young Leadership Award, and Temple Emanuel, including serving as its sisterhood president and board member.

"Linda Steinberg always had a beautiful smile on her face and spread comfort and compassion to all she encountered. Her beauty was always shining inside and out. Linda was very positive in every situation, and she was fun to spend time with. She really had WRJ as a priority and she was good at asking and receiving support from individuals who got the job done. She was very ladylike and stylish including her southern drawl and gentility. She was sweet and kind to everyone and very welcoming to newcomers. Linda was president of WRJ at Temple Emanu-El Dallas at a critical time and that speaks volumes about her commitment and dedication. Looking back, we find gratitude for the things she helped to accomplish," shared Leah Beth Kolni, Celia Rose Saunders, and Rachelle Weiss Crane, p*ast W*RJ sisterhood presidents of Temple Emanu-El Dallas.

We thank Linda for being a part of WRJ's Ner Tamid Society and honor her memory and legacy.
