

WRJ-RAC Reproductive Health & Rights Campaign

Social justice has been a key priority for the Reform Jewish Movement throughout its history. Women of Reform Judaism (WRJ) has been a partner in this work throughout its 100+ years and has taken the lead on issues of particular concern to women. The Religious Action Center of Reform Judaism (the RAC) is the hub of Jewish social justice work, mobilizing and organizing communities to create a world of justice, compassion, and peace. Together, WRJ and the RAC educate and mobilize our members to be effective advocates for our progressive Jewish values as we pursue the crucial work of tikkun olam: repairing our world.

Our progressive voice has never been more important than it is now, at this moment in history!

As part of the RAC's Brit Olam, and made possible through WRJ's Social Justice Fund, the WRJ-RAC Reproductive Health & Rights Campaign (RHRC) provides the organizing structure for Reform congregations, women's groups, and individuals to take collective action.

With your help, we will mobilize our communities to secure our reproductive rights by training activists to be strategic and effective advocates. We will fight state and federal efforts that restrict access to abortion. And we will advocate for policies that restore health and dignity to women as moral agents of their own medical and health care needs.

Through the Reproductive Health & Rights Campaign we will...

- ✓ Monitor state and federal laws that would diminish access to reproductive health services.
- ✓ Alert activists to engagement opportunities for both advocacy and direct support.
- ✓ Provide educational webinars and networking opportunities for activists.
- ✓ Conduct trainings and learning sessions at Reform Movement conferences and gatherings.
- ✓ Network with key coalitions for federal and state-wide training and advocacy.
- ✓ Produce advocacy tools such as Action Alerts, Jewish textual resources, and testimonials.
- ✓ Provide a congregational toolkit for organizing and mobilizing an advocacy team.
