

Judith Rosenbaum, Ph.D.

Judith Rosenbaum is Executive Director of the Jewish Women's Archive, a pioneering national organization that documents Jewish women's stories, elevates their voices, and inspires them to be agents of change.

An educator, historian, and writer, Judith served for nearly a decade as JWA's Director of Public History and Director of Education, developing its major programs and educational initiatives.

Judith earned a BA in History from Yale University and a PhD in American Studies from Brown University. She won a Fulbright Fellowship to study women's collective communities in Israel, and received a dissertation grant from the Radcliffe Institute for Advanced Study to research the women's health movement. Judith has taught and lectured widely on Jewish and women's studies at Brown University, Boston University, Hebrew College, and Gann Academy. She serves on the faculty of the Bronfman Youth Fellowships.

Judith regularly publishes in both academic and popular journals and blogs including Tablet, the Forward, the Huffington Post, The Jewish Week, Tikkun magazine, Sh'ma magazine, Presentense, MyJewishLearning, Kveller.com, and Role/Reboot, as well as in several anthologies, including Gender and Jewish History, Women of Katrina, Righteous Indignation: A Jewish Call for Justice, and The Women's Passover Companion: Women's Reflections on the Festival of Freedom.
